SECTION I. BACKGROUND, OVERVIEW, AND GOALS

A. Background

The City of Greeley's Water and Sewer department (the City) seeks a qualified contractor to facilitate the creation of an Integrated Water Resource Plan (IWRP). The plan will replace a Water Master Plan previously completed in 2003. Since that time, the City's approach to water resource management has evolved in response to changes in population projections, development trends, evolving climate science, demand management, and water market competition. These changes paired with an ability to capitalize on large-scale data collection and management are driving the department to transition its approach to planning. As part of this effort, the City wishes to utilize a scenario based planning technique that employs robust data solutions for both short-term and long-term adaptive planning approaches, incorporating uncertainty. In contrast, past planning efforts have focused on a single expected future. The IWRP framework must integrate alternative water supplies, demand management (conservation), system operations, and infrastructure to meet identified service standards. The City wishes to complete the IWRP effort by December, 2022 within a to not exceed budget of $550,000.00.

The City has a robust water resources system with water rights in four river basins, two water treatment plants, a healthy non-potable system, and an award-winning water conservation program. The City utilizes a MODSIM-DSS raw water allocation model to simulate its water supply system. The MODSIM model works in conjunction with basin wide models for the Big Thompson and Cache La Poudre Rivers and integrates yield from the Colorado-Big Thompson (CBT) project. Collectively, the model is referred to as the Greeley System Model (GSM). The GSM is used to test various operations and acquisition strategies to determine the yield of Greeley's water system during a synthetic severe drought scenario. The model has recently been updated to reflect current operations and has been outfitted with a data management system to store model run information and improve the user experience.

The City wishes to explore storage and acquisition alternatives that will ensure meeting the City's level of service goals going forward. The long-term goal of the IWRP project is to ensure security for water delivery to City of Greeley customers by planning for risks and uncertainty surrounding the future. The final product would produce a short term (10 year) Capital Improvement Plan as well as a long term (50 year) strategic plan built by scenario. Key goals for the plan are to set service standards, include stakeholder input, characterize risks and key uncertainties, refine hydrological data, identify water supply alternatives, create adaptive planning tools, and develop strategies for phased planning approaches.

B. Overview

The City of Greeley is soliciting proposals from qualified Integrated Water Resource Plan experts (Consultant(s)) to support a scenario based, adaptive, Integrated Water Resource Planning effort. Importantly, the consultant will assist the City in initial scoping to refine the scope of services and tasks to best utilize resources.

C. Goals

The goal of the IWRP is to develop a water resource plan for the City that achieves the following:

- A flexible and actionable adaptive plan that can be implemented on both short (10 year) and long (50 year) planning horizons.

- A robust, sustainable, and data-driven planning document that can be utilized for years to come.
- A financially responsible IWRP and CIP that align with the core values of the organization and supports the City mission to deliver high-quality water at an affordable price.
- A well written, well documented final product that is easily understood and accepted by all stakeholders.

To achieve the goals, the City wishes to:

- Maximize efficiency by utilizing publically available data and internally available data from past modeling and master plan efforts.
- Utilize data-driven approaches to decision making and reporting.
- Maximize utilization of current City owned assets.

SECTION II. STATEMENT OF WORK

A. Scope of Services

The following tasks outline an expected scope of work for the creation and application of an Integrated Water Resources Plan. In general, the Consultant shall develop the most cost-effective, defensible, and feasible effort towards the IWRP. The Consultant's services required for this work will include, but are not limited to the tasks listed below. The Consultant shall in their price proposal expand and elaborate in sufficient detail and define other tasks necessary to adequately address the City's goals and all issues and assumptions involved in the completion of this project.

All pertinent information associated with the current Greeley Water Master Plan, Greeley System Model, and other supporting documents will be provided to assist the Consultant in the execution of project work. The Consultant can identify in depth data needs during the Scoping phase of the project.

TASK 1 – Scoping

The consultant will assist the City in refining the scope of the IWRP effort, ensuring that each task has the resources and budget to appropriately supply the requested deliverables. This includes, but is not limited to, refining task series and timeline or budget distribution to produce desired deliverables. Subsequently, the Consultant will work to clearly identify the City's needs and deliverables, communicating internally and externally to ensure cohesive planning objectives. In this task the Consultant shall identify any data needs to be provided or obtained by the City in order to complete the project.

Deliverables:

Refined Scope of Work: An revised scope of work will be written, outlining in detail all task series, deliverables, timelines, and budget in agreement of both the Consultant and the City.

TASK SERIES 2 – Groundwork

Utilizing the 2003 Water Master Plan as a standard the consultant should assist the City in the following tasks:

Task 2.1 Identification of Baseline Condition

The consultant shall work with the City to identify the current condition of the City's water system including supply and demand, water management conditions as well as constraints related to the City's water supply sources and water rights. From this effort the City wishes to develop a set of metrics that can be annually updated to identify baseline conditions.

Task 2.2 Identify Key Performance Metrics

The consultant shall work with the City to identify performance metrics. Performance metrics should be unique, definable, concise, and specific measures that objectively evaluate water supply system performance. Performance metrics should be quantitatively trackable over time, however, they must also align with available model output. The suit of performance metrics shall be utilized to objectively evaluate water supply system performance in future scenario analysis.

Task 2.3 Develop Level of Service Goals

The consultant will work with the City to identify key level of service goals to act as guard rails when evaluating system alternatives. Level of service goals should be quantitatively measurable variables that can include currently measured variables or newly identified variables. They will be utilized to test water supply alternatives and determine recommendations to the water supply plan. Therefore, level of service goals will guide the decision-making process and be utilized in communication with decision-makers and community members. Level of service goals should update past policy and include public input.

Task 2.4 Identification of Alternatives

The consultant will work with the City to identify and evaluate alternatives for source water and storage. Identification of alternatives should include consideration of new acquisition strategies, storage projects, as well as concepts to improve current supply utilization including demand management and conservation. A strategy to evaluate alternatives shall be developed and utilized in subsequently in Task 3. Consequently, the alternative list should be iteratively refined as scenario's develop and as part of an adaptive management strategy.

Deliverables:

Documentation: Documentation of Task Series 2 should be thorough, including documentation of the decision processes and the outcomes.

Baseline Condition: A description of the baseline water supply system condition. Including a folder housing all documents utilized in determining baseline.

Water Resource Alternatives: A document that lists water supply and demand management options for the City to consider in order to mitigate future uncertainty. The document should include documentation of alternatives including rough estimates of feasibility and cost. This deliverable must be updated after Task 2 and 3.

Performance Metrics: A document that lists the performance metrics that evaluate the system under uncertainty. The document should include an accounting of the decision making process and detailed descriptions of the performance metrics. Performance metrics should have both numeric and text descriptions.

Level of Service Goals: A document that lists goals that define acceptable levels of performance for the system with quantitative metrics and text descriptions. The document should describe the rationale for selection.

TASK SERIES 3 – Scenario Development

Task 3.1 Identify Risks and Uncertainty

The consultant will assist the City in identifying key risks and uncertainties within the water supply system. Risks could include hydrologic and climatic variability, infrastructure and operational risks, legal and political conditions, or demand variation. To identify risks and uncertainty, the consultant will assist in hosting stakeholder meetings/workshops to gain outside opinion. Input from subject matter experts or literature reviews shall also be incorporated into the decision making process. A suit of key risk and uncertainty variables shall be quantitatively prioritized. Importantly, decision making steps should maintain transparency and be thoroughly documented.

Task 3.2 Scenario Development

A scenario denotes one of many reasonable future conditions that the City will plan for. Scenario development shall incorporate uncertainty by planning around key drivers and themes. Drivers should capture the key risks and uncertainties identified in the previous tasks. In order to incorporate key hydrologic variations, development of new data may be necessary, however, utilization of publically available data may be preferred to best distribute resources. Secondly, scenario development must consider supply and demand variability. The City last modeled demand projections in 2017 and re-evaluated the projections in 2019. Scenario development should include stakeholder input in a workshop environment. Many scenarios should be considered, however, only a small suit of scenarios that highlight key future conditions will be selected for evaluation. Details regarding the scenario development and selection approaches can be refined in the scoping phase identified in Task 1.

Deliverables:

Documentation: Documentation of Task Series 3 should be thorough, including documentation of the processes and the outcomes.

Risk/Uncertainty Tables: The driver selection process should be reflected in step-wise tables that transparently reflect a quantitative narrowing of risk/uncertainty variables. The final table should be contained within a document that describes the process of selection and display the final selected risk/uncertainties that will drive the IWRP process for the City.

Scenarios: A document that describes the decision process including all reasoning and support for the finalized scenario selection. The document must include the selected suit of scenarios representing key future risks/uncertainties including detailed definitions and data needs.

TASK SERIES 4- Scenario Implementation

Task 4.1- Evaluation of Alternatives

The consultant will evaluate the supply alternatives identified in Task 2. The top alternatives identified must be characterized by outlining conceptual-level descriptions, feasibility and cost. Conceptual-level can be defined as estimates or descriptions based upon prior knowledge, technical definitions or expert opinion. If necessary, alternatives will be more thoroughly explored once feasibility is determined. Using a rating matrix, compare up to ten alternatives according to their performance in meeting the City's level of service goals. This will be an iterative process within Task 4 and will necessitate working with City staff to iteratively review analysis. Preferred alternatives will be selected based on alternative scoring.

Task 4.2- Simulation of Scenario and Evaluation of Performance

Well defined scenario conditions will be simulated in the Greeley System water allocation Model (GSM). Performance metric results from scenario simulation shall be compared to level of service goals in order to identify system exposure. The consultant shall support City staff in scenario simulation, data processing, and data visualization. Scenario simulation support comprises supporting data development and acquisition including updating demand projections, alternative hydrology, and data management support. The GSM has recently been updated and outfitted with a data management system in preparation of the IWRP effort. The consultant will help to identify changes or necessary modifications to the network model or to post-processing abilities before scenario simulations. Network modifications may reflect operational changes by scenario. Integration of changes and simulation in the GSM will be handled by City staff.

Task 4.3- Compare Portfolios and Develop Future Water Supply Strategy

Alternative water supplies, projects, and acquisition portfolios should be developed for each scenario in order to improve performance compared to level of service goals. Alternative examination shall incorporate aspects of feasibility, reliability and economic evaluation/cost analysis. Cost analyses should be conducted as part of individual alternative selection and when developing a comprehensive water supply plan. The City wishes for tradeoff analysis and portfolio selection to be clear and analytical in order to maintain transparency. Finalized portfolios must clearly demonstrate the selection process including performance metrics/level of service goals, cost analysis, and include key risks and vulnerabilities (i.e. environmental, political, social). The City wishes to utilize an adaptive planning approach that results in actionable plans on a short-term 10-year Capital Improvement Plan horizon and a long-term 50-year horizon. The creation of the 10-year CIP will include more financial planning, scope design, and total cost estimations.

Deliverables:

Technical Memorandum: TM documenting the simulation of scenarios within the GSM. This memo will act primarily as a guide for details regarding model runs and the specific data utilized for each simulation. This document will support future water plan update efforts. The document must include detailed documentation of data necessary for each scenario.

Documentation of data by scenario: Before scenario simulation, identification and definition of all metrics associated with each scenario must be clearly documented. This includes associated demand levels, hydrology and any critical data associated with a scenario. Necessary documentation may be refined within the scoping phase including but not limited to the need of technical memorandum for Demand analysis or hydrology development. This includes the creation of folders that house data associated with each scenario, separated by final stage and development.

Technical Memorandum: TM documenting cost/performance analysis completed including source data, analyses steps and results.

Other Materials:

PowerPoint presentation: A presentation that summarizes the project effort and results for leadership meetings include both a PowerPoint and pdf document.

Factsheets: A pdf factsheet to assist in education and project findings with current supply and demand conditions, future scenario descriptions and alternative selections.

Final report: The final report should include an executive summary, table of contents, all deliverable items including detailed descriptions of tasks, steps to complete task series, and the finalized water supply strategy. All technical memorandums may be attached separately.

TASK 5 –Project Management

The Consultant is responsible for tracking project budget and schedule on a monthly basis. The Consultant must prepare monthly invoices and submit in a timely manner for review by the City. At any time, the Contractor may be asked to provide a status report if requested. In addition, biweekly meetings should be held between the Department and consultant.
